

Angela Kim

Angela Kim is currently a Health Program Analyst II at the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health in the Health Promotion Bureau. She has been involved in violence prevention work for the past 8 years and previously served as the Director of Outreach and Education at the WomenShelter of Long Beach. Angela also serves as a freelance reporter for the California Health Report, a solutions-oriented public health journal.

Angela has an MA in American Studies and Ethnicity from USC and received the USC Dornsife Graduate Fellowship and various research and funding grants from the USC Transpacific Center and USC Korean Studies Institute. She graduated magna cum laude from UC Davis with two BAs in American Studies and Gender, Sexuality, Women's Studies, and a minor in Education.

Angela's research has been published in Routledge Advances in Autocritical Disability Studies, Disability Studies Quarterly, and she has co-authored an article with USC Keck School of Medicine faculty for the Journal of Ophthalmic Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. Angela has also published in various mediums, such as poetry and personal essays.

With an MPH, Angela will apply her public health education to prevent and create awareness of sexual violence, domestic violence, and gender-based violence.

In her free time, Angela fosters baby kittens with her husband. She enjoys weightlifting, dancing, practicing yoga, and watching the Simpsons on repeat.
