Hannah Creutzfeldt grew up in New York City and attended Wellesley College in Massachusetts where she studied Neuroscience and Public Health.

Her interest in the intersection of health and education led her to San Jose where she taught high school math for 3 years. She currently acts as an internship and independent study coordinator to give students the opportunity to devote time in their senior year to explore their authentic interests. She also teaches a course dedicated to helping students make best fit academic and socioemotional plans for themselves for the future.

In her free time she enjoys spending time outdoors, reading, cooking/eating, and learning to sew.
