

Karl Ian Pacamalan

Karl Ian Pacamalan was originally born in Manila, Philippines. Shortly into his infancy, his family migrated to the United States to reunite with other family members. The first city that he called home was Los Angeles, California. Since Karl was young, he was always encouraged to pursue a college degree. His family always challenged him to look into UCLA as a potential suitor for his college goals.

As a young child, Karl moved to Florida, where he graduated from middle school and high school. Karl has learned to love central Florida and has adopted it as his second home. Karl has spent time volunteering at hospitals, group homes, and nursing homes with his church group. Karl is a devout Christian and uses his knowledge of his faith to help others face their own personal issues and helps others improve their own personal outlooks of their lives.

Karl spent most of his adult life in Orlando, FL where he graduated with his bachelor's degree in health services administration from the University of Central Florida. Karl has grown to have a passion helping others reach their full individual potentials. In Orlando, Karl is currently employed at an assisted living facility that specializes in caring for those with mental health conditions. Karl finds joy in assisting his clients every day with their daily needs in medication administration, medical appointments, and helping them with personal finances and insurance issues, among many other things.

Karl is looking forward to his future as a student at UCLA. He feels like an education in public health is very important in modern society and will continue to be a great asset as healthcare in America advances towards the future. Karl believes that UCLA is a great institution to help him achieve his goals. Karl would like to have a career within the UCLA Health system after graduation. He hopes to be able to usher in a greater understanding of health education to the public as well as educate others about the prevention of health risks.
