

Vishnu Reddy

Dr. Vishnu Reddy is a Pediatric Dentistry resident at UCLA. He was born in Michigan and grew up in Hyderabad, India. After high school, he moved to Salt Lake City, where he graduated with a bachelor's in Biomedical Engineering from the University of Utah. Dr. Reddy then moved to New York City, where he received his Doctorate in Dental Surgery from NYU. After dental school, he trained at a general dentistry residency at Woodhull Medical Center, a public hospital in Brooklyn and then worked as a general dentist in Western Massachusetts. During these years, he realized his passion for working with children and began ruminating on the many ways in which public health initiatives and policies can effectively bridge the gaps in dental care for children and adolescents.

Dr. Reddy is thrilled to be part of the UCLA family. He recently drove cross-country from Massachusetts to sunny Los Angeles and is excited to find places to hike and get good tea/coffee. He also enjoys trying different cuisines, watching movies, and travelling.

Dr. Reddy also speaks Hindi and his mother-tongue, Telugu.
